

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

2017 David Baumgardt Memorial Fellowship

The American Philosophical Association administers the David Baumgardt Memorial Fellowship in the amount of $10,000 for the support and dissemination of research in the field of ethics. Competition for this fellowship is open to candidates of any nationality, working in any country, whose research has some bearing on the philosophical interests of the late David Baumgardt. Broadly speaking, these interests were in the examination and comparison of types of morality associated with strong cultural and religious traditions, such as Judaism and Christianity, or based on certain contrasting principles (for example, love and justice on the one hand, power or forgiveness on the other).

Prospective candidates should read the statement on the APA website that has been prepared by the association, giving a more precise idea of Baumgardt's philosophical interests. If, after reading the statement, they consider their own research to be sufficiently close in spirit to Baumgardt's intentions, they should write a letter describing this research and show how the fellowship would assist them in writing or completing a work, some or all of which might suitably be presented as a series of two or three public lectures, to be known as the Baumgardt Memorial Lectures.

For more details and to apply, visit www.apaonline.org/?baumgardt

